the glasshouse

Blending the science of flowers and foliage with the beauty of art, The Glasshouse from Sanderson is a celebration of botanical drawing, new for SS19

Accurately interpreting the exquisite detail of botanical drawing, The Glasshouse from Sanderson is a truly stunning collection of eleven wallpapers, nine prints, two embroideries and three jacquards, each respectfully designed to showcase the undeniable beauty of the natural world.

To complement The Glasshouse, the Linnean Weaves book offers stunning colour combinations across a range of elegant designs including versatile geometrics and striking herringbones. Coordinating with The Glasshouse's fabrics and wallpapers, Linnean Weaves are perfect for upholstery and drapes, providing an exciting new addition to the entire Sanderson range.

For more than three hundred years botanical drawings have satisfied our curiosity, with world-wide observations skilfully recorded in illustrative form. Reflecting these pleasures, The Glasshouse encapsulates the wonder of flowers and foliage in art, as inspired by the science of botany.

Sanderson's head of design Rebecca Craig says, "The wide array of plants featured in this collection pay homage to the intrepid explorers of yesteryear, who journeyed to far off lands in search of new and exciting additions to the gardens of Victorian England. The Glasshouse is a celebration of these treasures, reinterpreted into a wonderful range of fabrics and wallpapers dedicated to botanical art."

The Glasshouse features three books: The Glasshouse Fabrics, The Glasshouse Wallpapers and Linnean Weaves, each designed and expertly coloured by the Sanderson team to accurately reflect the precise detail of the original subject. Tropical tones such as Rhodera and Eucalyptus meet with Blush and Aqua while Botanical Green brings an altogether more classical feel to the collection.

The launch comprises three books: The Glasshouse Wallpapers, The Glasshouse Fabrics and Linnean Weaves

The wallpapers

Accurately interpreting the exquisite detail of botanical drawing, The Glasshouse from Sanderson is a truly stunning collection of eleven wallpapers, each respectfully designed to showcase the undeniable beauty of the original plant or flower. Subtle textural looks meld with silhouetted shapes and metallic highlights while tropical tones such as Rhodera and Eucalyptus meet with Blush and Aqua to name a few.

Calathea

Originating in Brazil, the Calathea or 'Prayer Plant' was a favourite for illustration in the late 19th century due to its remarkable decorative foliage. Elegant and strikingly detailed, this wide-width wallpaper from Sanderson creates a striped pillar of abundant tropical leaves across the wall. A matching fabric is also available.

Available in three colourways: Botanical Green, Olive and Orchid/Eucalyptus

King Protea

Inspired by an original Sanderson archive document, the majestic flowerheads of the King Protea plant have been faithfully interpreted and recoloured to create this stunning statement wallpaper.
