How do you turn a partition system into a design element?

With colour and structure. The world of colours offers the ideal tone and shade for almost any requirement, satisfying individual tastes and expressing unique identity. In private and in commercial buildings. From conservative to bold, from calming to stimulating – every colour and texture has its own character. The decorative surfaces of the Classic Collection offer exemplary solutions – with nuances aplenty. Get to know the Classic Collection – and be inspired.

DISCREET COLOURS

Refined reticence.

Discreet white, grey and black define elegant restraint and purist design. They add scope to interior architecture while enhancing the impression of space. And they harmonise particularly well with glass elements. The room gives a feeling of alluring generosity and openness. Unobtrusive, these shades impart a truly individual note.

WARM COLOURS

Naturally radiant.

Natural colours such as cream and beige create a pleasantly calming and gentle ambience, providing a background that elevates the overall spatial effect. Such tones harmonise beautifully with sunlight entering through windows and skylights. Combined with materials such as decorative aluminum, partition systems in these colours create delightful contrasts.

STRONG COLOURS

Setting a confident tone.

Clients and interior designers wishing to make a clear colour statement will tend to choose a decor in jade green, lavender blue or bordeaux. These bold shades exude self-confidence and maybe even a leaning towards extravagance. They impart to variable partition systems a dominant role within the room, deliberately accentuating their presence in whatever configuration chosen.

BROWN SHADES

Always tasteful in character.

Select, warm, appealing and engaging – these are the attributes associated with brown shades, evidencing sureness of taste. Particularly when applied to larger areas such as those encountered in operable partitions, such tones exude expressive elegance. Combined with natural materials such as bamboo or stone, browns give grace to the interior, conveying stylish understatement.

ALUMINUM

Emphasising functionality.

Aluminum is particularly suitable as an office finish, accentuating the perception of reputable restraint. The spatial feeling can be described as neutral and balanced. At the same time, this tone offers plenty of design freedom to impart to the interior a more unconventional note with fabrics or furnishings in vibrant colours, creating a timeless atmosphere of undiminished modernity.

LIGHT WOOD SHADES

Natural charm.

Decors in light wood shades create a spatial experience characterised by natural permanency, effortless harmony and easy uniformity. The fine wood grain structures of birch, maple and beech create a soft, elemental ambiance. Such finishes contrast well with fixtures and fittings in black with stainless steel or aluminum trim to produce a rounded appearance of natural appeal.

DARK WOOD SHADES

For contrasts rich in quality.

Dark wood shades are capable of creating a natural spatial feel that lends itself to contrasting decor. Concise in expression and exuding strength, they awaken associations of quality and precision craftsmanship. An operable partition system in such tones remains clearly defined with respect to other surfaces and marries well with white or grey to generate an expectant atmosphere.
